

FCPOA Trains Junior Sailors

From NSA Mid-South Public Affairs

Members of the NSA Mid-South First Class Petty Officer Association (FCPOA) offered training to junior enlisted Sailors at the base chapel Jan. 26.

“This is not just about setting Sailors up for success,” said Electricians Mate Nuclear 1st Class Nathaniel Stude. “Teaching is a valuable tool that we [first class petty officers] will use as we progress through the ranks and this helps set us up for our future leadership.”

The training brought together nearly 50 Sailors to discuss and learn from each other. The topics covered were boot shining, neckerchief rolling, brag sheets, score sheets, Sailor of the quarter boards and evals, with each subject broken up into different stations to focus on one item.

“Everything we are covering today is valuable,” said Yeoman 2nd Class Jerrica Cobbs. “Everything we are learning here is a blueprint for your career. Everyone here wants to advance and by doing these things right you will become a well-rounded Sailor and help bring others up with you.”

The junior Sailors in attendance sat mock boards, receiving tips from seasoned professionals about how to conduct themselves to stand out amongst their competition.

“I just did a board and this information would have been huge going into it,” said Cobbs. “It’s ok though because I came into this room and I learned what I have and I’ll be better next time because of it.”

“It is a broad phrase, but I want these Sailors to learn how to be successful,” said Stude. “There are many different parts like standing out, going above and beyond – more than just basic requirements. These Sailors learning these skills will only benefit tomorrow’s Navy.”

NEX Employee Retires After 52 Years of Service

Story and photos by MC1 Jeff Atherton
NSA Mid-South Public Affairs

As we approach the centennial of military in Millington, people look back on the time and see what has changed. There are no longer aircraft here. There are no barracks lining the roads, no school house and no students.

What has remained constant is the people. Typically, people spend a handful of years aboard NSA Mid-South and move on to the next duty assignment or position. Barbara Clements is not typical.

For 52 years, more than half the life of the base, she worked at the Navy Exchange (NEX), providing commitment, caring and connection to the Navy and their families in many roles at the NEX.

“Serving a million customers and being the second most tenured person within NEXCOM, an organization with fourteen-thousand associates, is quite a feat,” said Capt. David Bryson, commanding officer, NSA Mid-South. “Serving generations of servicemembers through bootcamp, initial training, ‘C’ schools, senior level career duties, and our retired community, she embodies the Navy Exchange mission of providing customers with quality goods and services at a savings and to support navy quality of life programs for active duty military, retirees, reservists and their families.”

Her ceremony, which was standing-room only in the lobby at the NEX, was full of family, friends, coworkers past and present and customers.

“It was a privilege working with Barbara and hearing her stories on the history of NEX Memphis,” said Matt Barnwell, former general manager of NEX Memphis. “She was able to connect the past to the present and on numerous occasions was able to express what successes the store had in the past in relation to department locations and merchandising strategies. Barbara will be missed by the vast number of customers she has served and the current associates she serves with today.”

From 1964, before the majority of Sailors today were born, Clements stood the watch, ensuring that service members and their families were taken care of and when it was her moment to speak, she praised the people in the crowd.

“I have seen a lot come and go, but the most impactful part of my job has been these wonderful people in this crowd,” she said. “I’ll never forget my time here and how much this job has meant to me.”

Short on words, she retired to her chair at the front of the crowd to a thunderous round of applause one last time.

As we approach the 100-year anniversary of the military in Millington, take time to remember the people who have come before, who have walked down Singleton, studied in the long-gone classrooms and slept in the long-gone barracks and people who have shaped and molded the installation for what it is today, just like Barbara Clements had done for 52 years.

Navy Uniform Policy Update Released

From Chief of Naval Personnel Public Affairs

WASHINGTON (NNS) - On Jan. 26, the Navy released NAVADMIN 015/17 that updates several previously announced uniform policy changes.

These include specifics for the occasion for wear of Navy Security Force (NSF) identification badges/patches, revised implementation schedule for the Navy fitness suit, policy clarification for combination covers, female Service Dress Blue (SDB) covers and black slacks, safety boot wear, coyote brown command ball cap manner of wear requirements, and Cold Weather Parka insignia.

Below are some of the key uniform policy updates:

1. Badges. Effective immediately, the eligibility criteria to wear NSF identification badges and patches is as follows:

- Security Limited Duty and Chief Warrant Officers and (649X/749X) and Master-At-Arms can only wear the Security Force Identification Badge while they are in the Navy Security Force career field. Personnel who change designators or transition out of the security career field will no longer be authorized continuous wear of the NSF badge.
- Correction Specialist badge/patch. Sailors with the Navy Enlisted Codes (NEC) of 2008, 9575 or 9516 and performing correction specialist duties will wear the correction specialist badge or patch only when assigned to a corrections facility.

Official U.S. Navy file photo of the Navy certified desert tan or coyote brown rough-side-out leather non-safety boots when wear of safety boots is not required that commanding officers may authorize for optional wear. Black leather safety boots (steel-toed) are the standard boots worn with the Navy Working Uniform Type III.

- Chief Master-At-Arms (CMAA) is the new name for the Command Master-At-Arms and those with Permanent Change of Station to CMAA duties are authorized to wear the CMAA badge and patch only for the duration of their assignment.

2. Navy Fitness Suit. Production challenges delayed recruit issue of the new Navy Fitness suit at Recruit Training Command (RTC) Great Lakes from the previous target issue date of Oct. 1, 2016. The new target date to issue the fitness suit is now April 1, with fleet availability for personal purchase at Navy Uniform and call centers to follow at a later date. A future NAVADMIN will provide an update to RTC introduction and fleet availability.

3. Dress Covers. The new deadline for mandatory wear of the Alternate and Unisex Combination Covers for female officers and Chief Petty Officers is extended from Oct. 31, 2016, to Oct. 31, 2018. The enlisted White Hat remains mandatory for wear with jumper style uniforms only. The Navy continues to rollout previously announced uniform changes as scheduled.

4. Female Officer and Chief Petty Officer SDB Uniform. Effective immediately, the optional wear of male officer's and chief petty officer's SDB Trousers is authorized with the female SDB uniform. We are continuing our efforts to redesign women's pants that will result in an improved fit.

5. Enlisted SDB. Enlisted female Sailors E-1 - E-6 and below Sailors may wear the SDB uniform with four button jacket and slacks or skirt until Dec. 31, 2019. When wearing the optional SDB uniform, the female enlisted combination cover shall be worn. The White Hat is not authorized for wear with this uniform. The new jumper style female enlisted SDB began introduction at RTC Oct. 1 and Fleet availability is expected to commence in February.

6. Safety Boots. As previously announced, the black leather safety boots (steel-toed) are the standard boots worn with the Navy Working Uniform (NWU) Type III. Commanding officers may authorize the optional wear of the Navy certified desert tan or coyote brown rough-side-out leather non-safety boots when wear of safety boots is not required. Sailors must buy these optional brown boots if they are not issued them by their commands as organizational clothing. Optional boots not required as organizational clothing will be procured at the expense of the Sailor and not the authorizing command.

7. Coyote Brown Command Ball Cap. Guidance was provided on the manner and occasion for wear of the Coyote Brown Command Ball Cap with the NWU Type III to be consistent with how the Blue Command Ball Cap is worn. For officers O-5 and above, visor ornamentation for Navy head gear shall be gold in color, consistent with Navy standards.

8. Cold Weather Parka. Sailors E-4 through O-10 will wear rank insignia, either a metal rank insignia or NWU Type I slip-on rank insignia, centered on the rank tab of the Cold Weather Parka. A black slip-on rank insignia is being developed for the cold weather parka to replace the NWU Type I insignia.

Controlled Burns at NSA Mid-South

From NSA Mid-South Public Works Department

To promote forest health and reduce unplanned fires NSA Mid-South is planning to have a series of controlled burns in February and March of this year. Controlled burns are commonly used to manage forest undergrowth.

The burns will be done on non-holiday weekends. Because this is the first time in many years that controlled burns will have occurred, the burns for this year will be limited to roughly 25 acres and will be used as a training exercise for all involved. Larger burns will occur the following winter.

The controlled burns will produce smoke. The plan is for the wind direction to take the smoke off base, but we may encounter smoke. Please note the following:

- Affected streets will be blocked off by base security.
- Avoid any smoke while driving a vehicle and if need be keep windows and doors closed and switch your car heater/AC to recycled air. Leave smoke affected area as soon as possible.

• If at home, stay indoors with your windows and doors closed until the smoke has cleared.

The following dates have been set aside to do controlled burns on base:

- First choice (weather and conditions permitting): Feb.15-Feb.19
- Secondary choice (weather and conditions permitting): Feb.21-Feb.24

• Fall back date (weather and conditions permitting): Mar.10-Mar.13

Date windows are necessary to ensure optimal weather conditions. There will be at least two (2), possibly three (3) one-day controlled burns over the specified time period. On the day of burns the NSA Mid-South Facebook page will provide real-time controlled burn details.
